EXPERIMENT : No. 2 Verfication of Beer-lambert's law

DATE

Aim - To Study and Verify the Beer-lambert's law.

Principle -: (1) When a monochromatic light pass through a a coloured solution, Some specific wavelength of light are absorbed which is releated to colour intensity.

(2) It is the most common analytical technique used to biochemical estimation in clinical labortery.

(3) The amount of light absorbed to transmitted by a colour solution is in accordance with two laws, beer and lambert's law.

(4) The measure of colour intensity of solution by photometry is governed by beer-lambert laws.

(5) The amount of light absorb or transmitted by solution is accordance with beer and lambert's law.

(6) Beer-lambert law -: it is stats "when a ray of monochromatic light pass through an absorbing medium, intensity decreases exponentially as concentration of the absorbing medium increases

$$I = Io e^{-Kc}$$

where, I = intensity of transmitted

Io = intensity of incident light

K = Constant, C = Concentration of absorbing medium.

Transmittance (T) = light of intensity of incident light to emergent light is called transmittance.

Requirement -:

Chemical :-
Coloured Solution of $CuSO_4$ (20 mM/L)
$CoCl_2$ (200 mM/L), $KMnO_4$ (500 mM/L) and $FeCl_3$.

Glassware -
Pipette (1ml & 10ml), test tube.

Miscellaneous :
Colorimeter, distilled water.

Protocol -: [A For λmax]
(i) prepare dilution as per dilution table
(ii) Take a central dilution record its absorbance of different wavelength is the visible range of spectrum.
(iii) determine the λmax as wavelength at which maximum absorbtion take place.
(iv) plot a graph, on X-axis Vs absorbance on Y-axis

[B for beer-lamberts law]-
(i) Measure the absorbance of all tubes.
(ii) plot a graph of Concentration of $KMnO_4$ on X-axis Vs absorbance on Y-axis.
(iii) draw a Straight line graph indicate the Verification of beer-lambert law.
(iv) determine the equation of Straight line manually & by using a Spreedsheet.
