Brief report of programme (in 250 -300 words)

The Department of Film, Tv and New Media Production (FTNMP) organized an Online Guest Lecture for the students of FY and SY students on the topic “Sound and Music” on . The speaker for the Guest Lecture was Rahul Ranade.

In his lecture Rahul Ranade discussed audio signal processing methodologies that are specific for music and of use in real applications. We focus on the spectral processing techniques of relevance for the description and transformation of sounds, developing the basic theoretical and practical knowledge with which to analyze, synthesize, transform and describe audio signals in the context of music applications. Sounds are all around us, but what is sound? Sound is a type of energy that is produced when something is in motion. This produces a vibration. When an object vibrates, it causes movement in air particles. These particles bump into the particles that are close to them, which make them vibrate as well, causing them to bump into more air particles. These movements are called sound waves. They can travel through air, liquids and solids. If your ear is within range of the vibrations, you hear the sound.

He explained that there are sounds that humans cannot hear. Actually, they are not sounds because human beings do not hear them. They are called infra-sounds and ultrasounds. They can be heard by other creatures. Sound can travel under the water. It moves four times faster through water than through the air. It can travel such long distances that whales can hear each other when they are nearly a hundred miles apart. Sound waves need a medium to travel through. Sound can travel through air because air is made of molecules. These molecules carry the sound waves by bumping into each other, like dominos knocking each other over. Sound can travel through anything made of molecules, even water! There is no sound in space because there are no molecules there to transmit the sound waves.

The speed of sound depends on the medium through which the waves are passing. Sound travels through air at 340 meters per second. Some aircrafts fly faster than sound. In the picture, a plane is breaking the sound barrier. Pitch is the quality of sound that lets us distinguish between high and low sounds. It depends on the frequency (number of vibrations per second) of the sound wave. When the vibrations are fast, you hear a high note. When the vibrations are slow, it creates a low note. The sound waves in the diagram show the different frequencies from high to low sounds. Musically, the pitch is the position of a tone in the musical scale. The scale is a succession of seven notes ordered according to a pattern of tones and semitones. The most common scale is “Do Major”. Its succession of tones and semitones is: TTS TTTS.

Intensity or volume is the quality of sound that lets us distinguish between soft or loud. It depends on the amplitude of the sound vibrations. The greater the vibration, the greater its amplitude will be and louder the sound. In music, intensity is represented by dynamic markings. Dynamic is the gradation of soft and loud notes. These symbols were created by composers in the eighteenth century, in order to produce more interesting and expressive music. Dynamic markings are written using Italian words.

He also discussed Elements of music- Melody is a series of notes arranged in a particular rhythmic pattern and divided up into smaller units called phrases. Melody is the horizontal structure of music. Melody is one of the most basic elements of music. A note is a sound with a particular pitch and duration. Play a series of notes together, one after the other, and you have a melody. But the melody of a piece of music isn't just any line of notes. It's the notes that catch your ear as you listen; the line that sounds most important is the melody. He also talked about rhythm, rhythm notations etc.

He also talked about audio features, presenting various spectral wave analysis methods with which we can obtain features of a sound, extraction of audio features using spectral analysis methods, describing sounds, sound collections, music recordings and music collections. Clustering and classification of sounds. Demonstration of various plugins from Sonic Visualiser to describe sound and music signals and demonstration of some advanced features of freesound.org.

The programme started at 10:00 am and ended at :00pm. The guest speaker was heartily welcomed by Anurag Takke, a student of F.Y. FTNMP. Interested faculty and students from other colleges were also invited to the lecture. The lecture was heard with admiration by the students and they also found the slides appropriate.

Prof. Sameer Rane, HOD, presented a small token of appreciation to our valuable guest of honour.
